
Greenwood Roche assists French construction giant

Australasian utility contractor Electrix, part of McConnell Dowell, has been acquired by French construction giant VINCI Energies. Electrix has approximately 2,000 employees located in New Zealand and Australia and provides a range of maintenance and construction services for utility providers.

Greenwood Roche assisted VINCI in respect of New Zealand aspects of the transaction, working closely with VINCI Energies' international legal teams from Baker McKenzie (Sydney) and Bolze Associés (Paris). Greenwood Roche is proud to have worked with VINCI and its legal team on this project.

About VINCI:

- VINCI Energies' is the world's largest company in construction and related services and is listed on Euronext's Paris stock exchange and is a member of the CAC 40 index.
 - According to its website, in 2013 the VINCI Group had 171,678 employees and worked on 266,000 projects in 100 countries – with VINCI Energies having around 63,000 employees in 45 countries.
 - For more information on VINCI Energies, please visit www.vinci.com
-

Specialist Expertise

Corporate & commercial
Energy & natural resources
Construction

Key lawyers involved

Brigid McArthur
Barry Walker