
Property Council New Zealand Awards 2023

Over 360 guests, including a large contingent from Greenwood Roche, enjoyed the evening-long celebration at T?kina at the recent Property Council of New Zealand Awards evening held in Wellington.

Whakamihi to the team behind Wellington's new T?kina Wellington Convention & Exhibition Centre – Wellington City Council, Willis Bond, Studio Pacific Architecture, Dunning Thornton Consultants, Beca, Holmes Fire, LT McGuinness and all the subcontractors and suppliers, which took home the highest accolade, the Greenwood Roche Supreme Excellence Award at the recent annual Property Council - Wellington Property Peoples Awards. Over 360 guests, including a large contingent from Greenwood Roche, enjoyed the evening-long celebration at T?kina.

In a rare unanimous decision, judges commended the project team for the seamless delivery of a project of immense vision, scale and complexity, particularly when faced with the unprecedented disruption of the Covid-19 pandemic.

Judge Paul Robinson says, “the collaboration of the T?kina team has resulted in an extraordinary asset for the city – stunning architecture delivered on time and on budget – that greatly enhances the city and region.”

“T?kina is the Capital's largest built infrastructure investment for two decades, spanning a build period of 3.5 years. Home to exhibitions and conventions which will boost tourism and dollar spend in Wellington, T?kina is a catalyst for further development in Wellington and greater investment in the region.”

We would like to extend our congratulations to all other award recipients and nominees from the evening with a special mihi to Lewis England, General Manager of Property Acquisition and Operations at Te R?nanga o Toa Rangatira, who was awarded the coveted Beca Young Achiever of the Year Award and Richard Findlay, Managing Director of Colliers Wellington, who was presented with The Outstanding Leadership Award.

Thank you to the team at Property Council New Zealand for organising the event and celebrating industry success.

Greenwood Roche looks forward to continuing our long association with the Awards in 2024.
