Wellington Property People Awards 2025

Whakamihi to Emily Newmarch of Warren and Mahoney, who took home the highest accolade, the Greenwood Roche Supreme Excellence Award at the 2025 Property Council – Wellington Property People Awards on Friday 14 November at T?kina. Over 380 industry leaders and rising stars came together to recognise and celebrate the changemakers in the Wellington region whose mahi, talent, and passion is shaping a stronger and more sustainable Wellington.

The judges cited Emily's "extraordinary impact" in translating PhD-level climate research into practical, low-carbon design solutions across sectors ranging from health to aviation. Her influence extends well beyond the studio, with contributions to industry education through the New Zealand Institute of Architects and her international speaking engagements focused on sustainability in design. Emily's impact was recognised with her being awarded both the Beca Young Achiever Award and the Greenwood Roche Supreme Excellence Award.

Greenwood Roche would like to extend its congratulations to all award recipients and nominees from the evening, with a special mihi to Jim Wana, who took home Catalyst Property Professional of the Year, and to Grant Heighway of Catalyst, who was presented with the Rolle Property Outstanding Leadership Award.

Thank you to the team at the Property Council New Zealand for organising another wonderful night of connection and celebration.

Greenwood Roche looks forward to continuing our association with the Awards in 2026.
