
Electricity upgrades

The national electricity grid is owned by the State-owned enterprise, Transpower New Zealand, with lower voltage distribution lines owned by a range of locally and publicly owned entities.

Greenwood Roche advises Transpower on all property aspects relating to the national grid including the new 400kV-capable transmission line between Whakamaru, in south Waikato, and Auckland.

Specialist Expertise

Construction and infrastructure projects
Energy & resources
Property & real estate

Key lawyers involved

John Greenwood
Julian Smith
Steve Woodfield